The following procedures shall be followed when children suffer insect stings:

1. The child should be brought to the nurse immediately.

2. Where children are known to be allergic to insect bites, the written instruction of the private physician should be followed.

3. When no prior knowledge of allergy is available, and a child is reacting adversely to an insect bite, the nurse should follow the directions of the school physician's standing order.